Jobbeskrivelse

The Finance Research Group at Aalborg University Business School is looking for individuals with an exciting research agenda and publications in leading Finance(or Finance-related) journals. We welcome applications from those with research and teaching interests in all areas of Finance.

We are particularly interested in candidates engaged in innovative research, whether in emerging areas such as sustainable finance or in pioneering work within traditional fields like corporate finance, asset pricing, or financial econometrics. While these themes represent key interests, we remain open to a broad spectrum of research profiles that advance the frontiers of Finance. In addition, candidates should have a robust understanding of core Finance subjects—including corporate finance, asset pricing and/or financial econometrics—to ensure they can effectively teach and contribute to foundational courses.

Successful applicants will be responsible for developing and contributing to the research strategies of the Research Group, while maintaining a reputation as experts in their respective subject areas. They will also develop teaching activities by pursuing new and innovative approaches, taking responsibility for the quality of course units, and delivering a range of teaching and assessment activities—including lectures, setting/marking coursework, handling practical matters, and supervising fieldwork in Finance.

In addition, the position entails important administrative responsibilities such as coordinating course units, contributing to curriculum development, and participating in departmental committees and activities.

Applicants should possess a PhD degree or equivalent academic qualifications at the PhD level. They must have a proven track record of research and scholarship in Finance, along with experience in teaching and supervising students at the undergraduate and/or postgraduate level. Additionally, they need to have the ability to plan, prioritize, and organize work and resources effectively and contribute to the collegiality within the group and the Business School at large.

An appointment as associate professor is a permanent appointment which includes an obligation to carry out research and teaching activities. To some extent, additional tasks may be defined by the University.
