BUSINESS POLICY PROFESSOR

Barna Management School is seeking a senior, full-time professor to lead the academic Business Policy area, also known as General Management Policy. All teaching and interactions with students, faculty, and administration are conducted in Spanish. Barna expects its professors to teach in more than one subject and to do research. Participant-centered methodology is used in most teaching; thus, experience in the Harvard Case Method is required.

Barna Management School is the leading business school in the Caribbean, located in the Dominican Republic with two campuses and an active corporate network. It offers postgraduate education, research and consulting opportunities, and collaborates with IESE, Spain's top business school. Its international faculty and achievements in global competitions make it an outstanding academic environment with global reach.

Barna Management School is the premier business school in the Caribbean, located in the Dominican Republic (population: 11,519,595). It has two campuses: the main campus in Santo Domingo, the capital, and a second campus in Santiago, the country's industrial hub. Both campuses provide postgraduate education, while the undergraduate program remains separate from this role.

The position requires a professor with extensive experience in most graduate management topics, as most teaching will occur in the final modules of the MBA program. The cases taught will include areas a manager must control in day-to-day operations. Special emphasis is given to the humanistic side, as our school teaches that the human being is the center of all business decisions.

The position requires practical, verifiable experience managing a company or a major department in a large enterprise. The area has a strong strategy component; therefore, experience in this area is required.

Benefits of Working with Us

- A dynamic academic environment with highly motivated colleagues.
- A welcoming culture for expatriates.
- Annual salary between US$90,000 and US$100,000, commensurate with experience.
- Relocation benefits for the first five years of employment.
- Opportunities for direct interaction with top business and political leaders in the Dominican Republic.

If you are ready to help shape the next generation of strategic leaders and contribute to an institution that values meaning and impact, we invite you to apply.
